The English dictionary explains English words and how to use them. It not only gives the meanings of words, but also helps you with spelling, pronunciation, word building, and grammar.

To use your English dictionary correctly, you need to understand how it works. At the front of the book, there are instructions on how to use the dictionary. You need to read them carefully. Take one for example. If you look up the word “color”, you will find two spellings for this word. “Colour” is used in British English, while “color” is used in American English. The dictionary uses “BrE” for British English and “AmE” for American English.

Paper cuttings are not produced by machine, but by hand. The paper cutting materials are easy to get and convenient to make. Main cutting tools are simple: a pair of scissors and a knife. Skillful craftsmen are really good at making them on the theme of daily life.

Paper cutting sounds very easy but it can be very difficult to do. One must grasp the skills of controlling the scissors and cut the paper carefully without hesitation. No mistake can be made during the process, or the work will fail.

Many parents come to realize that teenagers seem to talk far more to their friends than to their parents as they grow up. And teenagers aren't as close to their parents as they used to be. Sometimes teenagers want to be treated as little children. Sometimes they want to be treated like adults. It is hard for parents to tell.

Small kids would tell their parents everything. However, this changes as they grow up and reach their teen years. They prefer to talk with their friends first instead of their parents. For parents, learning what's going on in teenagers' lives is the best way to help their children.

People start to forget things just after they learn them. They learn about something one day, but have forgotten half of it by the next. A week later they remember just a third of what they have learnt. So remember to go over your lessons after you learn them.

Your brain takes in things in sounds and images. But we don't remember images as long as we remember sounds. Sounds stay in our memories three times as long as images do.

People can't memorize things if they don't understand them. Learning needs attention. It takes about eight seconds to understand a piece of information and store it in memory. So try to understand it when you try to memorize something.

After all, failure is not always a bad thing. We can learn something from it. Just as the saying goes, "Failure is the mother of success." We can know our shortcomings and get some experience from failure. Only by trying hard again and again, can we have the chance to succeed next time. Furthermore, failure can make us stronger.

The English dictionary explains English words and how to use them. It not only gives the meanings of words, but also helps you with spelling, pronunciation, word building, and grammar.

To use your English dictionary correctly, you need to understand how it works. At the front of the book, there are instructions on how to use the dictionary. You need to read them carefully. Take one for example. If you look up the word “color”, you will find two spellings for this word. “Colour” is used in British English, while “color” is used in American English. The dictionary uses “BrE” for British English and “AmE” for American English.

Paper cuttings are not produced by machine, but by hand. The paper cutting materials are easy to get and convenient to make. Main cutting tools are simple: a pair of scissors and a knife. Skillful craftsmen are really good at making them on the theme of daily life.

Paper cutting sounds very easy but it can be very difficult to do. One must grasp the skills of controlling the scissors and cut the paper carefully without hesitation. No mistake can be made during the process, or the work will fail.

Many parents come to realize that teenagers seem to talk far more to their friends than to their parents as they grow up. And teenagers aren't as close to their parents as they used to be. Sometimes teenagers want to be treated as little children. Sometimes they want to be treated like adults. It is hard for parents to tell.

Small kids would tell their parents everything. However, this changes as they grow up and reach their

People start to forget things just after they learn them. They learn about something one day, but have forgotten half of it by the next. A week later they remember just a third of what they have learnt. So remember to go over your lessons after you learn them.

Your brain takes in things in sounds and images. But we don't remember images as long as we remember sounds. Sounds stay in our memories three times as long as images do.

People can't memorize things if they don't understand them. Learning needs attention. It takes about eight seconds to understand a piece of information and store it in memory. So try to understand it when you try to memorize something.

In our life, sometimes we have to face something we hate, or someone we never want to see. We may run into difficulties at any time, but do not be afraid. Just go ahead.

No one likes failure. But not everyone can always succeed. It's a pity if someone will never cheer themselves up after a failure. We must learn to accept failure. After all, failure is not always a bad thing. We can learn something from it. Just as the saying goes, "Failure is the mother of success." We can know our shortcomings and get some experience from failure. Only by trying hard again and again, can we have the chance to succeed next time. Furthermore, failure can make us stronger.

People should act to protect the environment. First, governments should prevent factories from pouring waste water into the river. Second, we should not throw rubbish everywhere.
